Research Lesson Plan: U.S. Military Enlistment: Change over Time
Author(s): Devin M. Sawdey, Anthea Bedminster, Veronica Everett
Targeted Grade Level: 8th

Essential Question: How and why has United States military enlistment changed over time?

Formative Assessment Prompts:

Instructional Chunk #1: What are some of the requirements for enlistment in the United States Army today?

Instructional Chunk #2: How have the requirements for enlistment in the United States Army changed over time?

Instructional Chunk #3: Why might the requirements for enlistment in the United States Army change over time?

Standard Addressed: History Standard 1. Students will examine historical materials relating to a particular region, society, or theme; and analyze change over time; and make logical inferences concerning cause and effect.

Problematic Prior Knowledge (PPL) Addressed Students are unclear about the combatants in World War I.

Activating Strategies:

| Strategy 1: Display Uncle Sam recruitment poster from World War I. |
| Strategy 2: Ask students to list some of the present-day requirements for enlistment in the U.S. Army. |

Key Vocabulary to preview

- Enlistment
- Muster Master
- Dependent
- Mariner
- Alien Enemy

Teaching Strategies:

- Student will work in groups of three: one being the reader, one the recorder, one the presenter.

Graphic Organizer(s) Used:
Materials Needed:
- Thinking Chronologically Graphic Organizer (1)
- Uncle Sam poster (2)
- World War I synopsis (3)
- Instructions for enlisting Men in the Service of the Delaware Government (4)
- Questionnaire (5)
- Exit Ticket (6)

Differentiation Strategies:
- Students will be grouped heterogeneously.

Instructional Plan:

Instructional Chunk #1: What are some of the requirements for enlistment in the United States Army today?

1. Procedures: As students enter the room, have the image of Uncle Sam (2) projected on a screen. Ask students if they can identify the image. Initiate a brief discussion about the purpose of the poster, and other relevant historical questions. Provide historical context if needed. Ask students to list what they know about U.S. military involvement in World War I.

2. Debrief: Ask the students to list any requirements they think must be met in order to enlist in the modern Army.

3. Check for Understanding/Summarizing Activity: Have one student scribe the list on a piece of chart paper for all to see. Lead a brief discussion on the merits of the choices.

Instructional Chunk #2: How have the requirements for enlistment in the United States Army changed over time?

1. Procedures: Explain to students that they will be comparing to documents related to United States military enlistment. One document will be from the Revolutionary War, the other from the First World War. Students will need some background on the First World War so the teacher ought to project the synopsis of American entry into World War I (3). Read and briefly discuss with students. Break students into groups of three, charging each with a specific task: reader, recorder, presenter. Distribute a copy of Thinking Chronologically (1), a copy of Instructions (4), and a copy of the Questionnaire (5). Display the Graphic Organizer (1) and explain to students that they are to analyze each document and complete the appropriate sections. Students are to be given 15 minutes to complete the task.

2. Debrief: Ask the students to present their findings. Call on each group to provide at least one piece of information. Scribe the responses on a projected image of the Graphic Organizer.
3. Check for Understanding/Summarizing Activity: Ask students to answer the question from Instructional Chunk #2. This answer should be found written on their Graphic Organizer.

Instructional Chunk #3: Why might the requirements for enlistment in the United States Army change over time?

1. Procedures: Have students discuss the historical background of each of the wars. Have students brainstorm ideas of “why” the requirements for enlistment might change. Lead the discussion so that students may express their ideas.

2. Debrief: Ask the students: How were the two wars different? How had America changed? How had the world changed?

3. Check for Understanding/Summarizing Activity: Have students review and revise their Graphic Organizers. If you are using a SMARTboard, project the Enlistment page of the United States Army. Have students check their original lists with the list found on the website. Briefly discuss why the requirements from 1776, 1917, and 2012 might be so different.

Summarizing Strategy: Provide each student with Exit Ticket (6) that reads: How and why has United States military enlistment changed over time.

- Attach Handouts or “Resources” below using page breaks to separate different “Resources.” Be sure to number and label them (e.g. Resource #1: Frayer Model) and refer to these numbers and labels in the procedure section.

- Lessons must be typed.

World War I

World War I was a major European war that began on July 28, 1914 and lasted until November 11, 1918. It involved the world’s great powers, which were assembled into opposing alliances: the Allies (Britain, France, and Russia) and the Central Powers (Germany and Austria-Hungary).

At the outbreak of the war the United States pursued a policy of non-intervention. When a German U-boat sank the British liner Lusitania in 1915, with 128 Americans on board, U.S. President Woodrow Wilson claimed that “America is too proud to fight” but demanded an end to attacks on passenger ships. Germany did so.

In January 1917, Germany resumed unrestricted submarine warfare. The German Foreign Ministry, in the Zimmermann Telegram, told Mexico that U.S. entry into the war was likely once unrestricted submarine warfare resumed, and asked Mexico to join the war as Germany’s ally against the U.S. Germany promised to send Mexico money, and to help it take back territories it had lost to the U.S. during the Mexican-American War. President Wilson released the telegram to the public. Many Americans saw this as a cause for war. The U.S. Congress declared war in April of 1917.

How and why have the requirements for enlistment in the U.S. Army changed over time?

It has changed! Because before, in 1776, there was low standards. In 1917 they started looking for more standards, like jobless, single, unskilled men. They did that because they wanted people who nobody or only little people loved. Because then, if they happened to die, barely anybody will be sad. Also the U.S. wanted the people to have something to do instead of lying around doing nothing.

How and why have the requirements for enlistment in the U.S. Army changed over time?

The requirements for enlistment in the U.S. Army changed over time. By 1776, you had to be a male, young, healthy, and a good marcher etc. In 1917, you could be male or female, jobless, unskilled, etc. The requirements changed because the population grew drastically.

How and why have the requirements for enlistment in the U.S. Army changed over time?

The requirements in the US Army had changed by 1776. They wanted specific people to go to the Army. And in 1917 they would practically choose anybody, because in 1916 they had limited resources. And wanted the healthiest they were. And in 1917 army's grew and would take anybody to make a big army.
